Profile of Indonesian CHEMICAL Manufacturers, 2011

In early 1990 domestic chemical industry had increased rapidly in which its growth reached over 10% per annum. However, in 1998 the performance of chemical industry dropped drastically as the impact of monetary crisis and this condition changed everything. Many domestic chemical industries suffered from difficulties and finally collapsed. Some of them closed down their operation or were taken over by other companies.

Chemical industries in the country are always faced with various issues such as the shortage of basic material supplies and energy as well as regional and international competitors.

Various efforts have been carried out by the government to assist chemical industries in the country and the outputs seem to be gladdening. It was seen in 2009 that the national chemical industry grew by 1.64% increased by 4.67% in 2010 and expected to grow over 5% in 2011.
